JOHN FREW,
Chairman Ohio Co. Republican Ex. Com.

The Cadiz Republic is of the opinion that wool growers should hold their clip for 50 cents per pound.

Zanesville spent $1,500 on a public park last year, and the papers of that city think it was money well invested.

DR. UPHOFF, who represents the district over the river in Congress, makes what the Cincinnati Commercial thinks the plainest and truest statement of "the Chicago case" that has yet been made. In an interview published last Friday he says:

"If the opponents of a third term stand together, without timidity, with aggressive resoluteness, Grant will not be nominated. The desperate contest to carry his own State betrays the hollow sham of the 'rising' business. There is, as Conkling once said about another matter, a 'breasy alliance of cash' in their methods, but that Convention will be full of earnest men, fresh from the people, whose estimate of the rights of the masses of the party will be higher than that of the Tribune. The Republican party in great emergencies has always acted wisely. I think it will now."

The following persons have been appointed as census enumerators for the county of Belmont in the Seventh (Ohio) district by W. A. Hunt, Supervisor: Coleman township, W. C. Stillwell; Flushing township, Levi Starkey; Goschen township, J. W. Coland; Kirkwood township, George H. Bentler; Mead township, R. F. Smith; Pease township, Joseph W. Liller; R. S. Moore, James H. Drennan; Putney township, George M. Wise; James Higleyman; R. W. Nelson, David B. Cratty; Richmond township, Frank Rice; Isaac Craft; Smith township, T. B. Jackson; Somerset township, Thomas Wilson; Union township, J. W. Nichols; Warren township, J. W. Knox; Thomas S. Frazier; Washington township, Thomas B. Hammond; Wayne township, Andrew Porterfield; Wheeling township, J. P. Harvey; York township, William F. Green.

GENERAL GARFIELD thinks the unit rule will be disregarded in the Chicago Convention. It has never been enforced heretofore, and why should it now. The right of the National Committee to depose Mr. Cameron, should be determined to act contrary to their wishes, carries with it the weight of justice and fairness. The General, in a recent interview, gives his views as follows:

"The Committee created the Chairman. It has the right to organize itself, and I think it has the right to reorganize itself. A committee charged with these duties has the right to say how those duties shall be performed, and if one man will not carry out their wishes they have a right to appoint another who will. Suppose Mr. Cameron had a severe cold and could not speak aloud, the Committee has the right to select another to perform his duties in the Convention. If Mr. Cameron is ready and willing to obey the orders of the Committee, well and good. If he is not, the Committee can readily find a man who will. It is not necessary to depose him. The Committee can simply appoint some one temporarily to perform the required duty."

The same thing occurs nearly every day in Congress, and the remedy applied in that body presents a solution of the nearly parallel case at hand. Mr. Garfield states the case in the following words: "Suppose a bill is before a committee. The Chairman votes against it, but the majority of the committee favor it. The Chairman does not report the bill. The committee names a gentleman to perform that duty, and for the time being he becomes, practically the Chairman. The same thing occurs here. It is a bill in question of whether forty gentlemen shall organize this Convention according to their wishes, or whether one man shall organize it according to his and against the others. It seems to be a plain question for the American people who believe in majorities."

POLITICAL NOTES.

THERE were more politics than piety at Chicago on Sunday last.

To-morrow the hosts at Chicago sleep upon their arms; to-morrow they fight.

It is predicted at Washington that the Chicago Convention will last four days.

The withdrawal of the Republican leaders from the floor of Congress to attend the Chicago Convention leaves that body practically without brains.

Gen. Gordon announces his intention to make immediate appointments to meet the people of Georgia and discuss, face to face with them, the issues that have grown out of his resignation.

The Boston Post (Dem.) says: "If Grant should lack about three votes of a nomination on the first ballot at Chicago we would as soon be General Garfield as anybody in the Republican party."

The Cincinnati Gazette intimates that Judge Davis got a few hours' start of Gen. Tom Erwin in his political letter, as the latter was nearly ready to bring himself out as a "dark horse" for the special advantage of the Cincinnati Convention.

The New York Tribune says: Not a Democrat in the land, from Tilden down to Finley, will know whom he favors for a Presidential candidate, till the third-term question is decided at Chicago. They are all waiting to dance with joy or rage according as Grant wins or loses.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE SOUTH.

A Chat With Judge Cochran About his Trip to Charleston.

Among the delegates from this section who recently attended the meeting of the Supreme Lodge of Knights of Honor, at Charleston, S. C., was Judge R. H. Cochran, and thinking that perhaps he had taken advantage of his visit, to make some observations that would be of interest to the public, a representative of the INTELLIGENCER dropped in upon him at his residence on the Island the other evening, and put him on the inquisitorial rack, which no well regulated reporter is without nowadays. The Judge was rather tough, and stood the pressure of the screws with Spartan firmness, but being only human, he finally succumbed to the torture and became communicative.

"What were your general impressions in regard to social and business life in the south?" we inquired.

"Well," said the object of the inquisition, "we went by what is known as the Southern Coast Line, which took us through Washington City, Petersburg and Fredericksburg, Virginia, and Wilmington, North Carolina, to Charleston. All along the route, or at least the latter half of it, the country is original sea bed, level and swampy, and either barren or overgrown with wilderness. A good part of the road is built upon trestles, with swamps beneath. The air is literally laden with the fragrance of blooming magnolias, but I noticed that where the magnolia grows luxuriantly and is indigenous, little else will grow."

"Are the inhabitants as bustling a people as ours?"

"Not by any means so. Nearly the exclusive industry of the section we traversed was gathering sap from the pine trees, about the only trees that grow there, and manufacturing turpentine from it. At one of the stations I asked a man what price he could get for his turpentine after all his trouble in collecting the sap and conveying it into the marketable fluid. He said he got $1.75 a barrel. I asked another man what price land commanded, with ordinary improvements, and he told me it would average $3 an acre."

With Charleston, and the people there, both Judge Cochran and Mrs. Cochran, who accompanied him, were well pleased. The people, he says, are cordial and polite as can be, and seem to be, to a degree, free from sectional hatred. Still they show that they have not forgotten the war, or its results, and have a disposition to resent it, if without bitterness, yet in a reproachful way.

"Charleston," he said, "has a fine harbor, and with enterprise and capital might be made a thriving city; but it has not the country about it to attract the class of people who would secure its prosperity. The enterprising business men there now are German Jews, or Northerners, or else descendants of persons who came from the North. The cotton business is a large interest. Mr. J. L. Good, J. H. Boyer, partner, resides in Charleston, and is operating in cotton and rice extensively. We saw several fields of rice, but business seemed to be so meagre compared to that of the cotton, that I did not stop to see it. The activity and importance with that one could not help noticing."

"Are there any factories there?"

"The most important mills I noticed were the extensive fertilizer factories recently constructed. They have discovered large deposits of fossil fish and other materials rich in the elements that improve the soil, and are crushing them into powder and selling them for manure. We visited one of the beds, and a member of our party, Rev. Francis Lobdell, of New York, picked up a mastodon tooth and a section of the vertebra. A fishing home I got a postal from him saying the tooth weighed thirteen and a half pounds, and measured eleven and a half inches in length. The vertebra was seventeen inches in circumference. Fish and cyprines are the principle kinds of timber, the Judge says. Cypress is valuable for railroad ties, as it is almost impervious to decay. It is also used for shingles and cooper-stuff."

"What about politics? Are our ideas concerning the situation down there about right?" we asked.

"Well, yes. I met very few Republicans, and they were not at all frank in stating it. They said they could not prosper in business, and be active Republicans, or express their views freely unless they coincided with those of the majority. Negroes are largely in the majority, and the white people claim that if they were permitted to rule they would have a bad case of affairs. So they don't permit them to, and I don't believe they intend to. They are perfectly frank in expressing their views, but do not show a disposition to talk freely with Northerners. A man at Wilmington, N. C., told me that in his opinion the negroes are undoubtedly degenerating as a race. They live in a revolting and beastly way, in some respects, and their ideas of liberty are that they are at liberty to do as they please with what they consider their own. Nameless crimes are said to be common among them, and it is represented that their condition is incomparably worse than in the days of slavery. The course of legislation is to restore slavery as far as practicable. Many other points were gathered, but all in keeping with the above, and the gist of the Judge's conversation will be found in what we have written. His conversation is very entertaining, and we only regret our inability to put in as pleasing shape on paper."

Crop Statistics.

A writer in the International Review says that in 15 years the production of wheat and barley in the United States has trebled; corn, cotton, and tobacco more than doubled, oats increased nearly 140,000,000 bushels, potatoes nearly doubled, and hay increased more than one-third. He gives the figures for the chief crops in 1865 and 1879, according to which the production of wheat has increased from 148,563,000 bushels in the former year to 448,756,000 in the latter; corn from 704,427,000 to 1,544,399,000; oats from 325,232,000 to 364,253,000; rye from 19,544,000 to 22,646,000; barley from 11,391,000 to 40,184,000; potatoes from 101,632,000 to 181,369,000; hay from 23,538,000 tons to 35,648,000; tobacco from 183,317,000 pounds to 384,009,000, and cotton from 2,229,000 bales to 5,020,000. The remarkable increase in the production of cereals has been largely owing to the settlement and development of the Western and Northwestern States. Within the present generation the centre of corn production has shifted from the South to the West, and of wheat production from the Middle States to the far West. In 1818, 50 per cent. and in 1859, 92 per cent. of the corn crop of the country was produced in the Southern States. In 1877, 850,000,000 bushels were grown in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska, while the production of all the rest of the Union amounted to 494,558,000 bushels.

The increase of the tobacco crop has been chiefly in the South, where the production increased 100,000,000 pounds from 1870 to 1879. During the same period the yield of cotton increased from 3,012,000 bales to 5,218,000. This increase was

ONE WAY TO CURE A TOOTHACHE.

Some months ago an English tourist, lingering in a country churchyard, was present at a funeral, and observed among the group of mourners a young man who particularly attracted attention by his swollen face and the utter dejection of his appearance. "Here at least is one true mourner," thought the Englishman. While this thought was passing through his mind the mourner took up a skull which lay on the top of a heap of dry mould and crumbled bones. He raised it to his lips, and with his own teeth extracted a tooth from it. Horrified the stranger as he watched his proceeding, and saw him throw the skull carelessly away, while he wrapped the tooth in paper and put it in his pocket. "Can you tell me why he did that?" asked our tourist of an old man who stood beside him during the funeral ceremony. "Aye, surely, your Honor," the poor boy was very bad with the toothache, and it's allowed to be a cure if you draw a tooth from a skull with your own teeth. He'll see the tooth in his clothes and wear it as long as he lives." "You don't tell me," said the tourist, "that the remedy will be effective?" "It's like enough, sir," replied the old man, showing where a tooth was sewed in the lining of his own waistcoat. "It's five years since I pulled that one the same way, and I never had a touch of the toothache since."—All the Year Round.
